The image used for the cover of the AGen/ACBPP/ACTIS2015 Conference Programme is from a woodblock print by Katsushika Hokusai (1760-1849). It is one of ten woodblock prints in the series “Remarkable Views of Bridges in Various Provinces” (shokoku meikyo kiran) and was originally published in around 1830.

This print is titled “Yahagi Bridge at Okazaki on the Tokaido” (Tokaido Okazaki Yahagi no hashi). The image depicts “a high-arched bridge on wooden piers stretching from bank to bank across an almost dried-up river bed. Through the centre piers of the bridge is seen an awning in front of which is a party of archers practicing at a target; crowds watching them from a bridge. In the foreground are strips of cloth hung up on a staging in the sand of the river-bed to dry; and great hats stuck up on sticks. On one of them appears the publisher’s mark, repeated round the awning behind the archers. In the background the peak of a hill rises through the clouds.”

Dear Colleagues,

Welcome to The Sixth Annual Asian Conference on Business and Public Policy (ACBPP2015), held alongside The Second Asian Conference on Technology and Society (ACTIS2015), and incorporating for the first time The Inaugural IAFOR Conference on Aging and Gerontology (AGEN2015), and with the overarching theme of “Power”.

The first day of the conference will concentrate on issues surrounding aging and gerontology, and how these issues affect society and business, as well as influence public policy. This opening day will also look at the role of data and information science in managing and coping with demographic change, considering Information, Education and Technology as Power. Plenary speakers will include Professors Yasuhiko Saito (Nihon University), Angelique Chan (Duke-NUS), Dryston Philips (University of Southern California), and DavidMatchar (Duke-NUS), as well as from the conference co-chairs; Professors Hiroshi Ishida (Tokyo University), and James McNally (Michigan University).

On the second day the conference will consider the question of power in a wider context, with a wide-ranging keynote from businessman and prominent public commentator, Bill Totten, and a featured address from Harvard Business School Japan Research Center Executive Director, Nobuo Sato on executive education in the US and Japan.

Throughout the conference, there will be oral and poster sessions from presenters representing more than 30 countries, and we look forward to meeting new friends, sharing ideas, and searching for the multidisciplinary synergies that create new knowledge.

I would like to thank IAFOR’s many university global partners, and in particular for this conference, the US National Archive of Computerized Data on Aging (NACDA) and the Inter-university Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) at the University of Michigan (USA), The Duke-NUS Medical School (Singapore), Nihon University (Japan), and the University of Tokyo (Japan).

I encourage your active and open participation in this conference, and look forward to meeting you all.

Warm regards,

Dr. Joseph Haldane, Ph.D. (London), F.R.S.A., F.R.A.S.
President, IAFOR
Aging Transitions & Power

The growth of the aged population has been an issue of interest for almost 40 years. The aged have been referred to as an epidemic, a tidal wave and a crisis. There is no specific reason why any of these polemics is an effective description of the aging transition. The growth of the world’s population over the age of 60 is merely the natural outcome of reducing mortality, particularly childhood mortality. While this population momentum has built up over time it has never been a “tidal wave”, merely the expected and predictable result of improved worldwide health. It is only a crisis in so much as governments and policy makers have chosen to ignore these obvious changes in their respective populations. Like any issue, you can transform a process into a crisis by the simple act of ignoring its existence.

Thematically, and throughout the AGEN event, we will be addressing three primary themes.

1) Information as Power

Crisis, misperceptions and poor policy development emerge from a lack of reliable information. Access to information is key to understanding the implications of the growing population of elderly; both in terms of what challenges they present to a society and in terms of what opportunities they may offer. Information is Data, without reliable survey data, administrative data, economic data and other forms of data streams we cannot make informed decisions and we cannot accurately describe the landscape of an aged population. A workshop that addresses data issues would be of huge value to a cross section of researchers, business professionals, advocates and policy professionals.

   a. What data resources exist and how can these data be obtained and used for answering questions?

   b. How do we share these data? In a world of Big Data how do we best ensure that people have access to data resources that will answer essential questions.

   c. What data resources need to be obtained in the future; who will decide what needs to be collected and how will these efforts be funded?

2) Education as Power

Most misconceptions and stereotypes regarding aged populations are the result of a lack of education regarding the aging lifecourse and natural changes that occur as one grows older. Using data to answer questions about the changing population structure of nations and the world is pointless unless we can also use this information to effectively educate people about the aging lifecourse.

   a. Teaching and Research: How do we educate our students, faculty and health providers about the aged? What courses do we need, what training do we encourage and how do we integrate gerontology into the educational system across nations. Increasingly, we see gerontological centers emerging in nations such as Vietnam, Malaysia and Indonesia. This argues there is an interest in expanding these efforts.

   b. Advocating: Creating stakeholders who advocate for the aged at the community and governmental level is essential for generating a successful and supportive environment for the aged. What educational materials, training tools and certification courses could be created to ensure the aged have sufficient levels of advocacy to maximize their potential within their own communities?

   c. Business and Service Provision: The private sector can and will play a vital role in creating vibrant business opportunities that will support the needs of the aged and the people who help them achieve their needs and goals. Education is key here, people need to be informed how the private sector can provide essential services and the private sector need to be educated as to the needs of this population. Both sides need to understand each other to avoid the risks of exploitation or the creation of unnecessary products.

3) Technology as Power

Using data to understand the patterns and needs of the aged and to anticipate future trends allows us to generate educational tools to best employ this knowledge in a systematic manner. Finally, we need to explore the ability of technology to help the aged maintain independence and a sense of autonomy as they transition through the force of morbidity that defines the lifecourse.

   a. What tools and adaptive devices can help the aged maintain autonomy and independence? What are the practical trends in technological development, such as pill dispensers, tools to help jog the memory and track activities, and devices to make homes safer and more elder friendly?

   b. What are the medical technologies that will change the lives of the aged? This includes diagnostics, medications, palliative care and tools to process and summarize medical care data.

   c. What is the future? What technologies may evolve in the future to completely change the way we look at aging and the aging lifecourse? Robotics, self-driving cars, communication, telemedicine; all of these issues can be discussed and a session on pure speculation of what “could” emerge would be quite popular.
Notes on the Conference Themes

POWER
Power as a commodity has challenged the minds of social scientists and philosophers while its exercise has always fascinated historians. From classical thinkers’ works such as Aristotle’s Politika or Machiavelli’s Il Principe through modern figures who manipulate power in the media, like Silvio Berlusconi or Rupert Murdoch, to the vast networks that support major heads of state, power has been a necessity to some or like an aphrodisiac to others. The dynamics of power and its associations with wealth and status now shape the contemporary world more visibly than ever. It is a research challenge to all fields in the academy to offer some explanation of its magnetism and its mechanisms.

ACBPP2015
The term “power,” among its many other uses, can be applied to identify one of the most important mechanisms employed in the corporate world. It can refer to anything from the exercise of authority in an office context to the manipulation of complex negotiations leading to a large-scale merger or acquisition. The psychological use of power and the psychological structure power plays of any scale share numerous common characteristics. They entail persuasion, compromise, positional movement, veiled threats, or the obverse side of blackmail, namely “white-mail,” where the moral stakes are raised to the point at which the opposition risks loss of reputation by resisting cooperating.

ACTIS2015
The era of Big Data has created great change and opportunity. It has allowed us to make more and more information accessible, and to catalogue and archive, as well as communicate more freely. However, the era of Big Data has ushered in an era of Big Brother. New technologies have facilitated such resistance movements as those in Hong Kong, but have also empowered governments to unparalleled levels of surveillance and breaches of privacy. In the context of this conference, the ambiguous concept of power will encourage reflections on questions of rights, responsibilities, and trust, as well as hegemony, ownership, and resistance; control, transparency, and censorship. Similarly, we expect to see explorations of the relationships of power between individuals, corporations, and governments, as issues of privacy, surveillance, and freedom of information test these.

As a conference theme, power in its many aspects is a hub concept that researchers, analysts, and practitioners alike can reflect on and speak about both in the abstract and from experience. Power and its perception can therefore be an invaluable concept in the exploration of the globalization of corporations, and we expect this theme to excite a number of stimulating research paths.
Getting to the Conference Venue
The Art Center Kobe is perfectly situated and is just a five-minute walk from Shin-Kobe Station.

From Kansai International Airport
Board the Kobe-bound airport limousine bus from bus stop number 6 on the first floor of Kansai International Airport. Get off at Sannomiya Station (see below).

By Bullet Train (Shinkansen)
The Art Center Kobe is a five-minute walk from the 1F exit of Shin-Kobe Station. There are regular bullet train (Shinkansen) services from Osaka (15 minutes), Kyoto (30 minutes), Tokyo (two hours 48 minutes) and Hiroshima (1 hour 13 minutes).

From Sannomiya Station (Kobe Downtown Area)
The bustling downtown center of Sannomiya, with a huge range of restaurants, bars, cafés and shops, is a 15-minute walk, or a short direct subway ride away. The express train from Osaka Station to Sannomiya takes 21 minutes. There are three options.
1) Take the subway to Shin-Kobe Station (Seishin-Yamate Line)
2) Take a taxi to the Art Center Kobe (about ten minutes and approximately 800 JPY)
3) Walk to the Art Center Kobe (about 20 minutes)

Around the Conference Venue
The Art Center Kobe is a large, modern events center overlooking the city, and is opposite the ANA Crowne Plaza, the official conference hotel.

Address: Kobe Geijutsu Senta, Kumochi-Bashi-Dori 7-13-11, Chuo Ku, Kobe

Information and Registration
If you have already paid the registration fee, you will be able to pick up your registration pack and name card at the Conference Registration and Information Desk. The Conference Registration and Information Desk will be located at the following locations during the conference:

- Thursday 08:15-12:00 – 2F (Open Studio) – Art Center Kobe
- Thursday 12:00-18:00 – 6F (Room 606) – Art Center Kobe
- Friday 08:15-12:00 – 2F (Open Studio) – Art Center Kobe
- Friday 08:15-17:00 – 6F (Room 606) – Art Center Kobe
- Saturday 08:15-14:00 – 6F (Room 606) – Art Center Kobe

If you have any questions or concerns, IAFOR staff and local volunteers will happily assist you in any way they can.

08:00-18:30 Post-Conference Tour of Kyoto
This is ticketed at 12,000 JPY and is by advanced reservation only. For more information, please check with the Registration and Information Desk. If you are registered for the tour, please meet in the 4F ANA Crowne Plaza Lobby at 07:45 for a prompt 08:00 departure.
What to Wear & Bring
Attendees generally wear business casual attire. You may want to bring a light jacket or sweater as the temperature in meeting rooms is often difficult to control.

Smoking
Smoking is not permitted in the Art Center Kobe. Please smoke outside of the building in designated smoking areas.

Internet Access
There will be a free WiFi internet connection on the 5F & 6Fs of Art Center Kobe. However, this can be unreliable and we would strongly suggest that you do not rely on a live connection for your presentation.

Wifi Connection Name: kobe-art Password: art12345

For your convenience, there will also be a limited number of computers at the Conference Information Desk.

Printing
For your convenience, there will be an iMac computer (with Microsoft Office installed) and a printer at the Conference Information Desk. We are able to offer a complimentary printing service of up to ten A4 sheets should you need this. Please be advised that printing may not be available at peak times.

Badges
When you check in, you will receive a conference package, which includes your name badge. Wearing your badge is required for entrance to the sessions. You must wear your badge at all times during the Conference.

There are four colours of badges indicating the type of conference participant:
- RED: Presenters and General Audience
- YELLOW: Keynote and Featured Speakers
- BLUE: Conference Exhibitors and Affiliates
- BLACK: IAFOR Staff & Board Members

There will be photography, audio and video recording at the conference. By entering the event premises you give consent to the use of your photograph, likeness or video or audio recording in whole or in part without restriction or limitation for any educational, promotional, or any purpose for distribution.

Eating & Drinking
Food and drink (excluding water) is not allowed in the presentation rooms. Please also refrain from consuming food and drink in and around the 2F entrance area.

Refreshment Breaks
Complimentary coffee, tea, and water will be available during the scheduled coffee breaks at the plenary session on Thursday morning on the 2F, and in Room 606 (6F) during the rest of the conference. Light snacks will be provided once in the morning and once in the afternoon.

Lunch
Lunch on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday is included in the conference registration fee, but is only available by pre-order. Lunches that were pre-ordered can be collected in Room 606 (6F) after 11:30.

Meals can also be purchased at any of the restaurants or convenience stores in and around the local area. There is a supermarket on the Art Center Kobe 1F. There are a variety of affordable restaurants in the Shin-Kobe Oriental Avenue shopping mall (B3F - 3F) located underneath the ANA Crowne Plaza Kobe (across the street from the Art Center Kobe).

2F
- Cafe de Clef (カフェ・ド・クリフ) – light meals and desserts
- Mame no Hakate (豆乃畑) – tofu and vegetarian restaurant
- Namaste Taj Mahal – Indian restaurant
- Shabusen (しゃぶ扇) – shabu-shabu restaurant

3F
- Chunagon (活伊勢海老料理 中納言) – lobster and shrimp restaurant
- Fusaya (旬菜食堂 房家) – vegetarian restaurant
- Katsu-Ya (手打ち豚かつ かつ屋) – tonkatsu (pork cutlet) restaurant

- Sasuki (紀州海鮮や 山水木) – fish restaurant
- Wakkoqu (あぶり肉工房 和黒) – Kobe steak restaurant

B3F
- Gourmet City (グルメシティ新神戸店) – supermarket, deli and bakery
Conference Welcome, Keynote Speaker & Featured Speaker Session: Thursday 09:00-12:00
The AGen2015 plenary session will be held on Thursday morning, with the event beginning at 09:00 in the Art Center Kobe’s 2F Prokofiev Hall. The ACBPP ACTIS 2015 plenary session will be held on Friday morning, with the event beginning at 09:00 in the Art Center Kobe’s 2F Prokofiev Hall. Please arrive in good time if you wish to attend these sessions. There will be an interval after the first keynote address and complimentary refreshments and snacks will be served. The plenary session will be followed by the official conference photograph.

Oral Presentations
Oral Presentation Sessions will run from 14:00 on Thursday afternoon, 13:15 on Friday, and from 09:30 on Saturday. They are generally organised into parallel sessions by streams. Sessions include two, three or four presenters. Each presenter has 30 minutes including Q&A time. The session length reflects the number of presenters.

Presentations and Equipment
All rooms will be equipped with a MacBook computer pre-installed with PowerPoint and Keynote and an LCD projector. If you wish, you may directly link your own PC laptop, although we advise you to use the computer provided by plugging in your USB flash drive.

We recommend that you bring two copies of your presentation in the case that one fails, and suggest sending yourself the presentation by email as a third and final precaution.

Session Chairs
Session Chairs are expected to introduce themselves and other speakers (briefly), hand out presentation certificates at the end of the session, ensure that the session begins and ends on time, and that the time is divided fairly between the presentations. Each presenter should have no more than 30 minutes in which to present his or her paper, and respond to any questions.

The session chair is asked to assume this timekeeping role, and to this end, a yellow and red timekeeping card is used as a visual cue for presenters, letting them know when they have five minutes remaining, and when they must stop.

Please follow the order in the programme, and if for any reason a presenter fails to show, please keep to the original timeslots as delegates use the programme to plan their attendance.

Presentation Certificates
Poster presenters can pick up a certificate of presentation from the Information Desk. All other presenters will receive a certificate of presentation from their session chair or a member of staff at the end of their session.

A Polite Request to All Participants
Participants are requested to arrive in a timely fashion for all addresses, whether to their own, or to those of other presenters. Presenters are reminded that the time slots should be divided fairly and equally between the number of presentations, and that they should not overrun.

We recommend that the 30-minute presentation timeslot be divided as follows: 20 minutes for the paper and ten minutes for Q&A.

Poster Sessions
Poster Sessions will run on Thursday and Friday. Sessions are 60-90 minutes in length and are held in the Base Room (6F Room: 606).

Poster Requirements
The poster display boards are 1800 mm high x 900 mm wide. We are able to provide tape and pins. Please be aware that there are no on-site printing facilities for printing posters.

Conference Proceedings
The Conference Proceedings are published on the IAFOR website (www.iafor.org), and can be freely accessed as part of the research archive.

All authors may have their full paper published in the online conference proceedings. Full text submission is due by December 7, 2015 through the online system. The proceedings will be published on January 8, 2016.

Authors will have PDF copies of their offprints emailed to them by the IAFOR office by February 8, 2016.

Returning Delegate Discount
Every year we have a growing number of delegates who have presented at previous IAFOR conferences. To show our appreciation, IAFOR would now like to offer you a 10% discount off your next IAFOR conference registration. This offer is valid for the next 12 months and covers any IAFOR conference in Asia, Dubai, Hawaii, or Europe that you may choose to attend.

Hiroshi Ishida is Professor of Sociology at the Institute of Social Sciences, University of Tokyo. He served as the Director of the Institute of Social Sciences and the Director of the Center of Social Research and Data Archives, at the University of Tokyo, from 2012 to 2015. He received his Ph.D. in sociology from Harvard University, conducted post-doctoral research at Nuffield College and St. Antony’s College, University of Oxford, and held positions of Assistant and Associate Professor of Sociology at Columbia University. He was a Visiting Professor of Sociology at the University of Michigan and a Visiting Fellow of Sociology at Yale University.

Dr. Ishida’s research interests include comparative social stratification and mobility, school-to-work transition, and social inequality over the life course. He is the author of Social Mobility in Contemporary Japan (Stanford University Press) and the co-editor with David Slater of Social Class in Contemporary Japan (Routledge). His work has been published in a number of journals and edited volumes, including American Journal of Sociology, American Sociological Review, British Journal of Sociology, European Sociological Review, and Japanese Sociological Review.

Dr. Ishida was the president of the Japanese Association of Mathematical Sociology from 2011 to 2013, and currently serves as the secretary/treasurer of the Research Committee on Social Stratification of the International Sociological Association. From 2005 to 2010, he was the editor-in-chief of Social Science Japan Journal, an international journal on social science research on Japan published by Oxford University Press. He is the principal investigator of the Japanese Life Course Panel Surveys, funded by the Japan Society for the Promotion of Science. He presently serves on the international editorial board of several journals, including British Journal of Sociology, European Sociological Review, and Social Forces. He is currently the Interuniversity Consortium for Political and Social Research (ICPSR) Official Representative for the University of Tokyo.

Featured Presentation: Social Science Japan Data Archive and Resources for Aging Research in Japan

This presentation examines the current state of the data-archiving activities in Japan, introduces the Social Science Japan Data Archive (SSJDA), and provides examples of resources available at the SSJDA and other institutions for aging research. Data archives collect, store, and disseminate social survey data sets that were collected by academic scholars, research institutes, and government agencies. Data archives compile a list of collected data sets and release them for public use in order to facilitate secondary analyses by academic users.

Data archives perform important functions for the academic community and the entire society. They prevent accidental loss of data by safely storing valuable data. Data archives reduce the burden of individual researchers and research institutions that conduct surveys by compiling, cleaning, and making data available to others on their behalf. By making survey data available for public use, data archives allow researchers who did not collect the data to replicate the analyses, and this practice contributes greatly to improving the standard of social scientific research. Secondary analyses provide opportunities for not only replication but also discovery of new findings which were not reported in primary analyses. Data archives prevent unnecessary repetition or duplication of similar surveys and save time and cost for researchers and reduce the burden of respondents. Data archives help improve the quality of social surveys conducted in the future because researchers who plan to conduct a new survey may consult materials and analyses of existing surveys that are available in the archive.

There are various data archives (broadly defined) exist in Japan. The most comprehensive data archive is the SSJDA which is housed at the Center for Social Research and Data Archives (CSRDA), Institute of Social Science, University of Tokyo. It holds over 1600 data sets, and about 70 new data sets are released every year. About 2800 researchers used over 5000 data sets in 2014. Approximately six percent of the users are from foreign nations. In order to accelerate internationalization, SSJDA introduced Data Documentation Initiative (DDI), an international standard for data documentation, and Nesstar, a software system for online data analyses. In addition to data archiving activities, CSRDA promotes secondary data analyses by organizing seminars on quantitative data analyses and introduction to secondary data analyses using selected surveys available at SSJDA.
Prof. Yasuhiko Saito is Professor at Nihon University, University Research Center. His main fields of work are demography and gerontology in general, and health expectancy and aging and health in particular. He has been involved in activities of a research network on health expectancy called REVES over the last 25 years. He is interested in studying both substantial and methodological issues on health expectancy. In recent years, he has been conducting longitudinal survey in Japan, and using longitudinal studies in Asia for his research activities.

Featured Presentation: The Nihon University Japanese Longitudinal Study of Aging (NUJLSOA) – History and New Directions
The NUJLSOA is a longitudinal survey of a nationally representative sample of the population aged 65 and over in Japan. The first wave of data was collected in November 1999, the second in November 2001, a third wave in November 2003 and the forth wave is currently under development. The study was designed primarily to investigate health status of the Japanese elderly and changes in health status over time. An additional aim is to investigate the impact of long-term care insurance system on the use of services by the Japanese elderly and to investigate the relationship between co-residence and the use of long term care. While the focus of the survey is health and health service utilization, other topics relevant to the aging experience are included such as intergenerational exchange, living arrangements, caregiving, and labor force participation. The NUJLSOA survey provides data comparable to that collected in the United States and other countries. The survey includes questions about a number of aspects of each respondent’s health and functioning: the presence of chronic diseases, impairments (vision and hearing), dental health, and functional limitations (Activities of Daily Living, Instrumental Activities of Daily Living and NAGI measures). Mental health outcomes such as morale (PGC moral scale) and depression were also included. Information on health risks included lifestyle behaviors (smoking, drinking, exercise, weight). Information on background characteristics and family circumstances is also included. Socioeconomic information includes education and income with limited information on assets. Data on health care service utilization, long-term care insurance, and information on intergenerational exchange and norms and values relevant to aging were also included. Similar questions were asked at the two waves with the addition of a number of questions relating to long-term care added to the second wave. Because the Japanese national system of long-term care insurance began on April 1, 2000, the first two waves of the survey provide a before and after system change picture of usage. Additional questions on economic status also have been added to the second wave of data collection. The WHO recommended approach to measuring depression, the CIDI short form for depression (CIDI-SF) was added to the second wave while the CES-D was retained. Questions asked at the first interview that reflect fixed attributes (e.g. parental characteristics) were not asked of previous respondents.

She is Director of the Centre of Ageing Research & Education at Duke-NUS. Dr Chan received her PhD in Sociology from the University of California at Los Angeles and completed a US National Institute of Aging Post-Doctoral Fellow at the University of Michigan.

She has published widely on aging issues in leading international journals and is co-author of a book titled Ageing in Singapore: Service Needs & the State (Routledge, 2006) and Co-Editor of Ultra-low Fertility in Pacific Asia: Trends, Causes and Policy Issues (Routledge, 2009). Her current research investigates the relationship between ageing and various physical and mental health outcomes including; healthy life expectancy, caregiving, productive aging, and long term care service utilization.

Featured Presentation: Understanding and Improving the Lives of Elders in Singapore – Introducing the Centre for Ageing Research and Education (CARE)

The Centre for Ageing Research and Education, CARE, is a newly launched initiative borne out of the Dean’s Office at Duke-NUS to create a center focusing on the intersection between social, medical and clinical aspects of aging. The Center will develop, coordinate, and implement research and education initiatives in ageing and health. Through this work, the Center will provide thought leadership in Singapore and internationally. The Center’s research agenda will complement the emerging research being developed on the study of age-related physiological and clinical phenomena. CARE will consider how accounting for social dimensions can contribute to successful aging, in particular, to achieve more years of health in tandem with longevity.

The distinctive role of CARE is to facilitate multidisciplinary research, CARE will serve as a nexus for scholars in social and clinical sciences, reflecting the critical importance of social issues on the health and well-being of aging individuals. CARE investigators in social science, engineering, architecture, and health technology research will engage in collaborative work with clinicians and biological scientists to provide evidence to inform Singapore's aged care policy and practice with the goal of achieving health, social inclusion and a high quality of life for our aging population.

Drystan Phillips is the Project Manager of the Gateway to Global Aging Data (www.g2aging.org) and the Assistant Director of Outreach of the Program on Global Aging, Health & Policy at the University of Southern California. With a background in Econometrics, Mr. Phillips first started his work at the RAND Corporation before moving to the University of Southern California. Broadly, his current research focus is the process of aging, its similarities and differences between cultures and countries. Additionally, he has recently focused on the interplay of genetics, environment, and behavior on longevity and the aging process. Mr. Phillips continues to explore the opportunities and challenges of multidisciplinary, representative, longitudinal survey data.

Featured Presentation: The Centre of Ageing Research & Education at The Duke-NUS Graduate Medical School
Drystan Phillips will discuss the work he and the Project Director, Dr. Jinkook Lee are doing to harmonise and organise multinational studies on aging into comparable resources that can be shared among an international audience in order to encourage new research.
Dr. James McNally is the Director of the NACDA Program on Aging, a data archive containing over 1,500 studies related to health and the aging lifecourse. He currently does methodological research on the improvement and enhancement of secondary research data and has been cited as an expert authority on data imputation. McNally has directed the NACDA Program on Aging since 1998 and has seen the archive significantly increase its holdings with a growing collection of seminal studies on the aging lifecourse, health, retirement and international aspects of aging. He has spent much of his career addressing methodological issues with a specific focus on specialized application of incomplete or deficient data and the enhancement of secondary data for research applications. McNally has also worked extensively on issues related to international aging and changing perspectives on the role of family support in the later stages of the aging lifecourse.

Featured Presentation: Data Collections, Resources and Tools for Aging Research – The National Archive of Computerized Data on Aging

Since the 1960s researchers have recognized the value of survey research data for the study of the aging life course. As cutting edge international studies of comparative aging are emerging across Asia, Latin America, Europe, and increasingly Africa the opportunities for cross-national and comparative research are growing exponentially. This is a particularly exciting time to work, due to the large number of trained research professionals working within their home countries and providing culturally grounded interpretations of results.

The creation and maintenance of sustainable data archives can be challenging but it offers clear advantages for a national research strategy. Data that is preserved can be used by multiple researchers, testing a variety of hypotheses and increasing the return on investment to the expensive process of data collection. Having an internally managed archival system also provides greater control and autonomy in the equitable distribution of data resources. This paper uses the National Archive of Computerized Data on Aging (NACDA) as a working example, of the advantages of having a local strategy geared toward the preservation and sharing of gerontological research data. In existence for over 30 years, NACDA preserves and distributes over 1,500 studies on the lifecourse and health of the elderly living in the United States and worldwide. Funded by the National Institute on Aging in the United States, NACDA represents one of the world’s largest collections of research data on elderly populations.

Using a strategy of archival preservation combined with a strong focus on productive research and outreach, NACDA has amassed data and metadata covering a wide array of studies worldwide that address the aging lifecourse. Because our collections are multinational these data are shared at no cost to interested users worldwide through the provision of a wide array of analysis and extraction tools that facilitate the research process for all users.

Dr. David B. Matchar, (MD, FACP, FAHA) is Professor & Director of the Health Services & Systems Research Program (DUKE/NUS). For over 25 years he has worked in academic clinical policy analysis and development, and clinical practice improvement. He focuses his research on the evaluation of clinical practice based on “best evidence,” and the implementation and evaluation of innovative strategies to promote practice change. His methodological work addresses the design of effectiveness studies, strategies for bridging the gap between analysts and policy makers, utilizing models to promote communication regarding complex clinical policy questions, and application of decision support systems to link evidence and community practice.

Closing Featured Presentation
Dr. Matchar will conclude our meeting by providing the perspective of an active clinician on the importance of research data and its value in developing health care policy and implementing sustainable change in the lives of the elderly and the communities in which they live.

Bill Totten is founder and CEO of K.K. Ashisuto, Japan’s leading independent distributor of packaged computer software for large organizations. He was born, raised and educated in Southern California. His education includes a doctoral degree (Ph.D.) in economics from the University of Southern California.

Dr. Totten worked on the Apollo program at Rockwell Corporation from 1963 to 1967 and on various projects at System Development Corporation (SDC) from 1967 to 1971. SDC sent him to Tokyo in August 1969 to research the Japanese computer market, and he has lived here continuously since then. His market research convinced him of the great potential for packaged computer software in Japan. When SDC decided not to enter the software package business in Japan, Dr. Totten resigned and established K.K. Ashisuto in March 1972 to distribute computer software packages to corporations and other large organizations. Dr. Totten has been CEO of K.K. Ashisuto ever since. Under his leadership, the company has grown from a small staff in Tokyo providing a few localized software packages, to a highly-regarded nationwide enterprise employing 830 people (as of January 2012) who produce 20 billion yen in annual revenue by distributing, supporting and providing consultative services for dozens of software packages to 5,300 leading Japanese corporations.

Dr. Totten has written a dozen books, speaks publicly throughout Japan and currently writes a weekly newspaper column addressing economic, social and political issues and the necessity of learning from and preserving traditional culture. Throughout his business career, he has given top priority to customers and employees. He strives to provide an environment where employees can secure themselves lifelong, remunerative, enjoyable jobs that foster their growth as individuals while offering the satisfaction of contributing materially to society. He insists that the main requisite for accomplishing this is to consistently and honestly provide useful products and services to customers and believes that a company doing so will grow to its optimal or natural size. He rejects both growth for growth’s sake and mining a business to enrich stockholders or executives.

Keynote Presentation: Power
1. The Internet of Things, “IoT”, which really should be called the Internet of Hackable Things, “IOHT” and why connecting so many things to the absurdly insecure and insecureable Internet is making our society dangerously fragile.

2. The Fracking Myth – the myth (or scam) of the shale and fracking revolution that was touted to turn the US into “Saudi America”.

3. How China and Russia are setting a new global agenda likely to replace the US neocon “New World Order”.

4. Japan’s choice between joining China, Russia, Germany, France, India, Iran, South Korea, et al in the rapidly integrating Eurasian economy or joining the US, Brunei, Chile, Peru, et al in the TPP. In other words, Japan’s mutually-exclusive choice between joining the “World Island” (Eurasia) or the outlying Pacific Rim islands.
Nobuo Sato is the Executive Director of the Harvard Business School Japan Research Center in Tokyo. Nobuo joined HBS in August 2009 and previously was a Partner at Egon Zehnder International for ten years, mainly covering the financial services sector in Tokyo. Before joining Egon Zehnder International in 1993, he worked at a leading Japanese bank, The Industrial Bank of Japan (IBJ), for 15 years including six years in London and two years at HBS undertaking his MBA (class of 1982). He obtained his BA in Economics from Keio University in Tokyo in 1978.

Featured Presentation: The Changing Focus of MBA Programs in America: Leadership Education at Harvard Business School
Contents of business education at MBA programs in America has been changing in repose to such external shocks as Enron scandal, WorldCom scandal and Global Financial Crisis over the past 15 years. HBS is not an exception. The presentation will talk about changes in HBS MBA leadership education over this period in depth and briefly touch upon changes which have taken place at other US business schools to show the changing focus of MBA programs in America.
The International Academic Forum provides new perspectives to the thought-leaders and decision-makers of today and tomorrow by offering constructive environments for dialogue and interchange at the intersections of nation, culture, and discipline. Headquartered in Nagoya, Japan, and registered as a Non-Profit Organisation (一般社団法人), IAFOR is an independent think tank committed to the deeper understanding of contemporary geo-political transformation, particularly in the Asia-Pacific Region.

“To Open Minds, To Educate Intelligence, To Inform Decisions”

The vision of IAFOR grew out of the perceived need to fill a vacuum in the communication and exchange activities of the academic world. Its mission arose out of examining that space and investigating why it existed. The vacuum existed because of the lack of opportunity for serious and thoughtful exchange between academics, members of the global business community, and practitioners in the fields of human endeavor that linked these groups together: in the field of education, for example, we have academic theorists, educational managers (political decision-makers and organisational directors) and classroom teachers with their support staff in IT, library work, exchange programs, and specialist fields. But how often do they have the opportunity to interact?

Moving beyond one particular field, larger questions arise. What function should universities prioritise in the 21st century? What do businesses see as their contribution to social and global well-being? How can people on the ground, trying to implement improvements that will transform human life, best be supported? And perhaps above all, what are the agendas that will drive mechanisms to enable these groups to interact effectively.

One piece of distilled thought that came from early exchanges at one of our conferences was the recognition that some of the rhetoric of concern about the problems of developing nations was perhaps over-focused on the term “poverty” because it can be defined only in a relative way. “Hunger” was put forward as being more immediate and itself a contributory factor to poverty, rather than the other way round. One key to the hunger issue could be the provision of safe drinking water, or water for irrigation in some contexts, while flood management might be necessary elsewhere. These, in and by themselves become valuable only insofar as they help to relieve hunger in specific contexts.

IAFOR is affording opportunities that do not exist elsewhere. The base is Kansai, Japan’s great commercial and manufacturing hub, one symbol of the emerging Pacific economy that is already eclipsing the long dominant Atlantic zone. Our conferences present those taking part with three unique dimensions of experience. First of all, it encourages interdisciplinary activity to be expanded. Depending on the field, this can face varying degrees of difficulty, ranging from discouragement to downright prohibition. Those overly dependent on fixed academic structures often see lateral thinking as a threat. None of these negatives apply in IAFOR. Its purpose is to generate new approaches that cross any disciplinary lines. The principle employed is to let the imagination permit intuitive responses to questions. There are no panels of critics. There are simply people who want to listen and reflect. The model of academic work as potholing is replaced by the metaphor of mountaineering. While respecting the need for solid and well-founded academic work, we feel the need to go beyond it from time to time to discover fresh approaches to old questions.

Secondly, it facilitates the heightening of intercultural awareness. Again, we encourage innovation through cross-cultural perception. Cultural roots influence people in their attitudes more than most would realise or admit. The need to see and internalise insights gained from other viewpoints is met by a process of steady illumination.

Thirdly, it promotes the broadening of international exchange. We may live in a world, but in reality parochialism still holds sway. The collapse of the U.S.S.R and the break-up of Yugoslavia led to the re-establishment of numerous former countries. While this may be desirable for the peoples concerned, it merely adds to the world’s cultural confusion. Exchange leads to explanation and that helps the growth of intercultural awareness.

IAFOR makes all of these developments possible in one gathering. Our conferences are not a substitute for specialist conferences. We intend our events to be an alternative that functions as a balance or even a corrective to the extreme tendencies that can arise from more narrowly defined research parameters. In short, IAFOR is promoting and facilitating a new multifaceted approach to one of the core issues of our time, namely globalisation and its many forms of growth and expansion. Awareness of how it cuts across the worlds of business, and academia, along with its impact on societies and institutions is one of the driving forces that has given the organisation its momentum, and is making it a pioneer in this global age.

Rev. Professor Stuart DB Picken
Order of the Sacred Treasure (瑞宝中綬章), M.A. (Hons), BD., Ph.D., F.R.A.S.
Chairman, Japan Society of Scotland
Chairman, IAFOR International Advisory Board

Dr. Joseph Haldane
B.A. (Hons), Ph.D., F.R.S.A., F.R.A.S.
President, IAFOR
Stuart D. B. Picken is the Chairman of the International Advisory Board, and in this role is Chairman of the Organisation. As Chairman of IAFOR, Professor Picken helps guide the academic and political strategy of the organisation, and assists in the forging of global institutional partnerships. He is also responsible for the development of the IAFOR Research Institutes.

The author of a dozen books and over 130 articles and papers, Professor Picken is considered one of the foremost scholars on Japan, China, and Globalisation in East Asia. As an academic, Professor Picken has devoted more than 30 years to scholarship in Japan, notably as a Professor of Philosophy at the International Christian University in Tokyo, where he specialised in ethics and Japanese thought, and as International Adviser to the High Priest of Tsubaki Grand Shrine (Mie prefecture). He has also served as a consultant to various businesses, including Jun Ashida Ltd., Mitsui Mining & Smelting Corp., Kobe Steel, and Japan Air Lines.

In November 2008, the Government of Japan awarded Professor Picken the Order of the Sacred Treasure for his pioneering research, and outstanding contribution to the promotion of friendship and mutual understanding between Japan and the UK. The honour is normally reserved for Japanese citizens and is a mark of the utmost respect in which Professor Picken is held by the Japanese Government. More recently, in 2012 he was invited to London to attend a reception at the Japanese Embassy, hosted by Emperor Akihito and Empress Michiko as an expression of their gratitude towards Britons who had helped support Japan after the 2011 Tohoku earthquake and tsunami. Professor Picken helped organise fundraising efforts through both the Japan Society of Scotland, of which he is the Chair, in the UK, and IAFOR in Japan.

Although now resident in Scotland, Professor Picken maintains his interests in Japan, as Chair of the Japan Society of Scotland, through the IAFOR IAB, and through regular visits.

Joseph Haldane is the President and Chief Executive Officer of the International Academic Forum. He was Academic Director from IAFOR's inception in 2009 until January 2011, and Executive Director from 2011 until late 2014, when he assumed his current role. He is responsible for devising strategy, setting policies, forging institutional partnerships, implementing projects, and overseeing the organisation’s business and academic operations, including research, publications and events.

Dr. Haldane’s academic interests include politics and international affairs, literature and history, and he holds a Ph.D. from the University of London in 19th century French Studies. He began his academic career in France, and from 2002-2005 held full-time faculty positions at the University of Paris XII (Paris-Est Créteil) and Sciences Po Paris, as well as visiting positions at both the French Press Institute in the University of Paris II (Université Panthéon-Assas), and the School of Journalism at Sciences Po Paris. Prior to founding IAFOR in 2009, Dr. Haldane was an Associate Professor at Nagoya University of Commerce and Business in Japan, where he taught a range of language and culture courses at undergraduate level, and the MBA Ethics course in the graduate school.

Dr. Haldane is now a Guest Professor at Osaka University’s School of International Public Policy (OSIPP), where he teaches on the postgraduate Global Governance Course. His current research concentrates on post-war and contemporary politics and International Relations especially in and between Japan, China and the USA.

From 2012-2014 Dr. Haldane served as Treasurer of the American Chamber of Commerce in Japan (Chubu Region). He is a Director of the Tokyo-based clean water charity, Wine in Water; and a Trustee of the HOPE International Development Agency (Japan). In 2012 he was elected a Fellow of the Royal Asiatic Society, and in 2015 a Fellow of the Royal Society of Arts.

He is married with two children and lives in Nagoya, Japan.
The IAB Executive Council is composed of distinguished academics, business executives, former and current government officials, and community leaders of international standing. Its role is to provide counsel and direction in the business and affairs of IAFOR, suggest and approve the areas of scholarly investigation, and safeguard the independence of the Forum’s work. International Directors of Program and Research Institute Directors are ex-officio members of the Executive Council of the International Advisory Board. Membership of the Executive Council of the International Advisory Board is by invitation only.

television shows, movies, and theatrical productions. I have worked with numerous industry professionals to develop my skills and knowledge. After completing my degree, I moved to Irvine, California, where I worked in the entertainment industry for several years.

Shawn Mahler – Senior Manager: Production

Los Angeles native Shawn Mahler has a wealth of experience working on film, video, and theater productions in the United States and Japan. He holds a Bachelor of Arts in Film Theory and Production from the University of California, Los Angeles. Shawn has spent over ten years living and working in Japan where he has worked for several third-party companies and now has over 11 years of experience in website management and software development. Due to his Scandinavian background, John speaks Danish and can understand Norwegian and Swedish.

John Ananthan – Technology Coordinator

Born and raised in northern Denmark in a multicultural family, John studied Computer Science at University College, Nordsjælland. At an early age, he started his own IT company, which he has worked for several third-party companies and now has over 11 years of experience in website management and software development. Due to his Scandinavian background, John speaks Danish and can understand Norwegian and Swedish.

Darcey Barge – Media Coordinator

Darcey Barge was born and raised in Yakima, Washington. After graduating from Yakima Valley and Collins College with qualifications in animation and TV video production, she pursued a career in the media at KNDO-TV. After moving to KNXV-TV in Phoenix, she received two Emmy nominations for her technical directing work Technical Directing Under Breaking News.

Thaddeus Pope – Senior Manager: Media and Design

Born and raised in Brighton, UK, Thaddeus is an experienced commercial and editorial photographer with a B.A. in Photography from the London College of Communication (University of the Arts London). Thaddeus oversees IAFOR's design and media output, as well as producing photo-essays, short documentaries and other visual content for the organisation's publications, including Eye Magazine. He is also the Creative Director of the IAFOR Documentary Photography Award.

Rachel Dyer – Publications Manager

Rachel studied art history at the University of Nottingham before embarking on a career in publishing in London. She has worked in print and online as a content manager, writer and editor across numerous titles, with a particular interest and focus on the arts and education. In her role as Publications Manager at IAFOR, she is responsible for coordinating all IAFOR publications, including the journals, the Eye Magazine and the IAFOR Academic Review.

Stephen Rudden – Systems & Administrative Coordinator

Originally from Leicester, England, Stephen Rudden is an experienced network and systems engineer with a B.Sc. in Computing from the University of Westminster. Before joining IAFOR in April 2015, Stephen was a network engineer working in IT companies and now has over 11 years of experience in website management and software development. Due to his Scandinavian background, John speaks Danish and can understand Norwegian and Swedish.

Virpi Helena Yasuda – Senior Administrative Support Staff

Virpi has a B.B.A. degree in Modern Languages and Business Studies for Management Assistants from HAAGA-HELIA University of Applied Sciences, Finland. Her studies included a half-year exchange program in EDHEC Business School in France and a half-year training as a Secretary at Finnish Security Intelligence Service.

IAFOR is committed to providing ALL of its publications in online form for no fee.

Researchers and scholars, regardless of institutional affiliation and status, can access our academic journals, monographs, magazine, conference materials and special publications for no charge, wherever there is internet access.

IAFOR will never ask authors to contribute towards publication costs, or engage in other such publishing practices which we believe undermine academic independence and integrity.

Visit the IAFOR website for further information – www.iafor.org/journals
IAFOR Keynotes Series

The IAFOR Keynotes Series is a collection of keynote addresses, or associated papers given at our conferences. Presented as a part of the open research archive, the Keynotes Series provides an example of the range and quality of speakers at IAFOR events. These keynotes are lightly reworked, and contain references, but are otherwise true to the original address. Many can also be seen in video format on our YouTube page. Whether you were present at the conference or not, the content from senior academics is a valuable source of information for research across a broad range of disciplines.

Special Series & Monographs

The International Academic Forum is publishing a number of special monographs both in print and online. One such publication is a selection of haiku from the Annual Vladimir Devidé Haiku Award.

Eye Magazine

Through Eye Magazine, the International Academic Forum’s own in-house e-magazine publication, we hope to enlighten you to the various views and opinions of our contributors, many of whom have presented full research papers at our conferences.

The Autumn/Winter 2015 edition of Eye Magazine is available on the IAFOR website (iafor.org/eye) and through the ISSUU reader on your browser or mobile device.
